Art Unit: 1616

Claims 1-25 are pending in this application. Applicants' claims are drawn to a method of controlling flies and ticks (see claims 7-9) by applying a composition comprising a cytochrome P450 monooxygenase inducer -- i.e., a triazine herbicide (claim 3) selected from atrazine, propazine, or simazine (claim 4) -- and an organophosphate insecticide (claim 2: coumaphos, diazinon, chlorpyrifos, fenthion, or pirimiphos).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the combined teachings of Geiszler-Jones and SIUC (both cited on the IDS).

Geiszler-Jones teaches that atrazine synergistically enhances the insecticidal activity of the organophosphate (OP) insecticides diazinon, malathion, parathion, and chlorpyrifos (p. 2).

SIUC also teaches that atrazine is a cytochrome P450 monooxygenase inducer which enhances the toxicity of OP insecticides such as chlorpyrifos, diazinon, parathion, and malathion (paragraph 4).

One of ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to combine these references because they both disclose the enhancement of OP insecticide activity by coapplication with the triazine herbicide atrazine.

Thus it would have been prima facie obvious to the ordinary artisan at the time the invention was made to have combined a triazine herbicide such as atrazine with an OP insecticide as taught herein because the prior art teaches that such combinations yield synergistically active insecticidal compositions. It would have been within the skill level of the ordinary artisan to determine appropriate formulation methods and concentrations of the active agents, as well as to recognize the species of insects which would be subject to control by the OP insecticides, and which animal species would be protected thereby.

No unobvious or unexpected results are noted; no claim is allowed.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).
